In the boxes below, provide both the date and the vehicle's odometer mileage at the time you experienced a Qualifying Failure or Qualifying Fire. To obtain certain Settlement benefits, you must have obtained a Qualifying Repair, as explained in the Class Notice, which refers to (1) any repairs to fix engine hole-in-block scenarios (i.e., the connecting rod punctures a hole in the engine block), (2) engine seizure (unrelated to pre-existing oil consumption issues), or (3) engine compartment fire (see Qualifying Fire). For repairs completed at Hyundai dealerships, Qualifying Repair will also cover work performed to address symptoms associated with connecting rod bearing failure where the vehicle received a diagnosis of (i) abnormal bearing noise in accordance with Hyundai's inspection protocols, (ii) stall was caused by engine seizure with a failed bearing clearance test, or (iii) P1326 warning light. Even if you did not complete a Qualifying Repair, you may still be entitled to receive some Settlement benefits for a Qualifying Failure or a Qualifying Fire. Qualifying Failure refers to an engine stall or other vehicle incident, caused by engine hole-in-block scenarios or engine seizure. Qualifying Fire refers to an engine compartment fire caused by engine hole-in-block scenarios or engine seizure. An engine failure is not a Qualifying Failure and an engine compartment fire is not a Qualifying Fire if not caused by engine short block manufacturing issues (examples of issues not covered under the Settlement include a fire caused by a collision, electrical, or fuel issues, or a stall caused by a fuel pump, oxygen sensor, timing, or electrical system malfunction). Please visit HyundaiEngineClassSettlement.com to learn more.
